STANDING FACE PULLS

STEP 1: SETUP

Move a cable to the top position. Using a double rope attachment, grab the rope in each hand with a neutral grip. Next, set the weight light and take a few steps back away from the pulley. From here, raise your arms so that they are straight and directly facing the pulley.

STEP 2

Brace your core and squeeze your glutes. Pull your hands towards your face, trying to get the cable to the level of your forehead. As you do so, pull back with both your elbows and hands, such that at the end position your arms are positioned in a "biceps flexing" pose at a 90 degree angle with your hands directly over your elbows. From here, slowly raise your arms up into a Y position and then back down. Then, straighten your arms back to the starting position.

ADDITIONAL TIPS

If using a band, you would execute this the exact same way, and simply use a wide overhand grip on the band. The band will be quite challenging from even just a few steps away, so position yourself relatively closer to the band where there isn't as much tension.